Orientation and Conversation with Patient Partners Across CRNs: Hearing their Voices

- In the past year, we each met with CRN patient partners to orient ourselves to their work and to help them understand the larger perspectives of PCORnet

Our Suggested Strategies for Strategic Plan for 3.0

- Our hope and vision that one of the main goals in the strategic plan for PCORnet 3.0 will be the creation of a patient stakeholder infrastructure/network across the CRNs.
- This goal will allow us to establish open channels of communication,

Cont'd: Our Suggested Strategies for Strategic Plan for 3.0

- Through such conduits for meaningful patient stakeholder engagement, we can build a community of Patient Partners across PCORnet
- These activities will create opportunities for Patient Partners to be involved with governance and developing research goals for the studies the network take on in the future.

IMAGINE Becoming the World's Leader in partnering with patients in research: Questions to consider

- What if Every Study that reaches the front door includes patients (and families/caregivers) on the study team who helped develop the question/query?

# 2 IMAGINE ...

- What if all studies assured patients with the most at stake for the answers were authentic partners where their lived experience was equally important to all other team members and that patients represent truly diverse perspectives?

# 3 IMAGINE ...

- What if patients helped to guide the long-term strategic plans of PCORnet and we created “patient-leaders” that helped to grow the network

How Might we Help to Realize this Vision?

- We are eager to help realize this vision and hope it will be one of the main goals for 3.0.
